

Leading the Way in Addiction Rehabilitation and Corrections

Our very own Robyn Feese, MA, LCADC, CPC, NCC, Director of the Substance Abuse Program at the Nevada Department of Corrections, has been making waves in the field of addiction and rehabilitation!

Robyn recently presented at the National Conference for the Bureau of Justice Administration in August showcasing her expertise in implementing evidence-based principles for corrections programs. With 17 years of experience in addiction, behavioral health, and corrections, her contributions have earned her national recognition.

She oversees five substances use disorder programs across Nevada and formerly served as the substance abuse lead counselor at the Wells Center within the Illinois Department of Corrections. As an adjunct professor in Illinois, Robyn's dedication to this vital field is truly inspiring. She holds multiple state and national licenses and a Master of Arts degree in human development counseling.

Stay tuned as Robyn continues to share her knowledge and expertise! She will be presenting at a local UNR-Cooperative Extension event and another National Conference (AJFO) at the end of this month.
