Temporary Court Injunction Stays Execution For Immediate Release July 11, 2018

The execution of Raymond Scott Dozier, which was scheduled to take place Wednesday, July 11th at 8:00 PM at Ely State Prison has been postponed. The Eighth Judicial District Court issued a temporary restraining order halting the use of Midazolam in the Nevada Department of Corrections execution protocol. The execution, which was ordered by the court, will not take place until further notice.

Dozier was sentenced to death after a first-degree murder conviction for the 2002 killing and dismemberment of Jeremiah Miller, 22. Miller's dismembered torso was found in a suitcase that had been dumped in a trash bin at the 8100 block of West Flamingo Road, Las Vegas, NV. During the course of their investigation, police uncovered another victim of Dozier who was dismembered and buried in the Arizona desert. Dozier was found guilty of second-degree murder in that case.
