521.07 REQUESTED VARIABLES

1. When deemed appropriate, a discretionary management variable may be applied to increase or decrease an offender's custody level. Consideration for the use of either variable will be from the recommendation of a Full Classification Committee. The reasons for applying a management variable are to be documented in a reclassification case note within NOTIS. Types of discretionary management variables include:
 - A. Institutional Adjustment Variable: When an offender scores close custody or medium custody but has no violent or serious major disciplinary history in the preceding 12 months, an institutional adjustment variable can be applied, and the offender's custody level decreased. Also, if an offender scores medium custody or lower but has been found guilty of a violent or serious major disciplinary infraction, an institutional adjustment variable may be applied, and the offender's custody increased to close. Offenders who commit murder while incarcerated are never to be considered for an institutional adjustment variable custody reduction from close. Offenders who commit murder while incarcerated are never to be considered for an institutional adjustment variable custody reduction on a guilty MJ16 Murder from close custody.

B. Administrative Variable: On a case-by-case basis, the Director or Offender Management Administrator may approve to decrease an offender's custody level as long as the decrease adheres with Nevada Revised Statutes.
